NO CONFIDENCE IN THE STABILITY OF THIRARD'S MINISTRY.

The Blandering Course of Procedure Adopted by the President Responsible for the Difficulties Encountered—How the Cabinet Now Stands.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The stability of a cabinet headed by M. Thirard and composed of such men as can be induced to serve under his premiership is doubted in all quarters. M. Thirard himself can only be regarded, in the circumstances of his selection, as a mere makeshift, and naturally any minister who may bring together the cabinet will be in like situation. The cause of the fallures thus far has been in a greater degree to the course of procedure than to any other circumstance or reason. The method pursued has been something like this: The gentleman summoned by the president to construct a government was each of his prospective colleagues separately, and without difficulty obtains his consent to accept the portfolio tendered to him, but when each is confronted by his colleagues he discovers some political element represented with which he cannot act in concert, and promptly declines to accept. Nevertheless, further attempts seem likely to be successful in filling the ministerial position under his leadership. It is known that M. Thirard's cabinet will be published to-morrow in the official journal, his government may hold together a short time—long enough, at least, to bridge over the present discontent and business depression.

TWO CAUCUSES.

The Membership of the Committee on Elections Settled.

Immediately after the adjournment of the House the Republicans met in caucus to select the members who are to constitute the minority of the committee on elections. The caucus lasted but half an hour, and nothing was done beyond the selection of the following named representatives, who are all lawyers, to serve on the committee: Messrs. Rowell, of Illinois; Hays, of Tennessee; Cooper, of Ohio; Lyman, of Iowa; Johnson, of Indiana; and Lodge, of Massachusetts.

Half an hour after the adjournment of the Republican caucus the Democratic representatives met in caucus to choose the majority of the election committee. Representative Holman moved that Representative Turner, of Georgia, who was chairman of the committee in elections during the last Congress, be again appointed to that position. Mr. Turner, however, declined the honor. A committee was selected to choose the majority of the election committee and before it retired Representative Hatch, of Missouri, moved that the caucus committee be instructed to report Mr. Turner's name as chairman. Again Mr. Turner declined, although the vote on the motion was in his favor, and the committee retired to deliberate.

Their consultation lasted over an hour, and considerable difficulty was experienced in the task of selection. Representative Crisp, of Georgia, was sent for and asked to be the chairman, and he responded fully to the request. After further consultation, however, the committee insisted on the choice of Mr. Crisp as chairman and reported the names of the following gentlemen to constitute the majority of the committee on elections: Messrs. Hathaway, of Ohio; Barry, of Mississippi; O'Ferrall, of Virginia; Maish, of Pennsylvania; O'Neill, of Indiana; and Hays, of Tennessee, of North Carolina, and Heard, of Missouri. The caucus accepted the report and adjourned.

TEN YEARS FOR HARPER.

The Fidelity Bank Wrecker Found Guilty and Sentenced.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 12.—The greatest crowd which has yet attended the trial of Banker Harper was present this morning. The jury in the case filed in at 10:30, and two minutes afterward the defendant, escorted by Marshal Turner, was brought in. His defense was followed by the prisoner. The case was then called on for the verdict. The jury decided that the defendant was guilty in the thirty-third year of his life, and sentenced him to ten years' imprisonment. Judge Sage gave him a reprieve for three months, and he was taken to the penitentiary. His family had a short consultation with him at the marshal's office, and then bade him adieu. He was taken to the penitentiary at 10:30, and was taken in a carriage to the Central depot, where a special car was waiting for him.
